	Claims	NO
Industrial applicability (IA)	Claims 1-10	YES
	Claims	NO

2. Citations and explanations (Rule 70.7)Citations:

The following documents identified in the International Search Report have been considered for the purposes of this report.

1. GB 2083564 A (SEBASTIAN et al) 24 March 1982
2. US 4418880 A (DE WAAL) 6 December 1983

Novelty and Inventive Step:

Claims 1-10: The claims are directed to a vertical axis turbine. The turbine comprises of three longitudinally extending blades, each blade having increasing axial cross-sectional width along the axis. The leading surface of each blade diverts fluid flow impinging thereon to generate a zone of reduced fluid pressure acting thereon. The trailing surface of each blade has turbulent fluid flow impinging thereon to generate a zone of increased fluid pressure acting thereon.

No individual document, nor obvious combination of documents discloses a turbine of the type characterised in the claims.

The closest art of US 4418880 A does not disclose a turbine with characterising features as claimed.

In view of above comments claims 1-10 are considered novel and inventive over the prior art.

Industrial Applicability:

The invention claimed in claims 1 - 10 has industrial applicability.
